Teaching and research activities in higher education

Supervision of PhD students, postdocs, and research fellows

I have supervised several PhD students and research fellows in various phases of their research projects: from contacting them for data collection and conducting literature searches, to data analysis and thesis writing, reports, and publications.

Member of the teaching staff for Ministry-accredited PhD programs

Since 2006, I have taught as part of the PhD program in Migration and Intercultural Processes at the University of Genoa. I focus on methodological topics, particularly qualitative research, critical analysis of research articles, social psychology research on migration issues, and software for qualitative and quantitative data analysis. Each year, I taught classes during the intensive Psychology weeks. In 2015, I also led the invited seminar "The Impact of Cancer Genetic Consultation on Women's Lives," at the Faculty of Medicine and Psychology: Psychology, Education, and Social Services, open to PhD students in "Communication, Interaction, and Socialization Processes," Sapienza University of Rome. In 2023, I also taught classes for the PhD program in Leadership, Empowerment, and Digital Innovation in Education and Learning (LEDIEL) on methodological topics.
