Research interests

At the core of my research interest are Menippean satire, literature of Roman early imperial age, history of philology and theatre; I am also involved in the dissemination of innovative didactic strategies. Recently, I have focused my attention on Seneca's Thyestes and on the mythological and literary tradition of the Pelopids; I am working on a collection of Greek and Latin testimonia on the myth of Thyestes and Atreus (Oxford University Press) and on a history of Latin literature (Einaudi).
